Bringing Mississippi Choctaws Into Indian Territories.

SOMETHING OF BUSINESS

with Them.

H. Van V. Smith, special disbursing officer for the Dawes Commission, is off for Mississippi to bring back to the Indian Territory another instalment of the CRAWFORD THEATRE indigent Mississippi Chockes under the Lincoln J. Carter's Greatest Dramatic been estimated by Mr. Smith that he will brought in from Mississippi by Mr. Smith. consisted of 262 Indians and 264 dogs. The dog part of the story is interesting. Just Nicholson and an excellent supporting before the aborigines were loaded on the cars for their ride to the Indian Terrilish approached the officer in charge and

> Mr. Smith was busy and did not reply. "Take dog?" Insisted the red man. Yes," sald the officer, "take him

A few hours later the train was laden with Indians and dogs-one dog for each ndian save one. He had two. They were indigent Indians. This probably account. ed for their wealth of dogs.

The first instalment of Mississippi Choo taws arrived in the Indian Territory just a short time before the time limit of their coming expired. They had to be in the Indian Territory within six months after the date of their corniment. They were indigent and were to be brought by the an appropriation of $29,000 made for that purpose and for their care and maintenance during the time they were getting started in life in the new country.

These Indians were taken to a spot near Atoka, in the -noctaw nation, where they were comfortably kept in a camp under the immediate charge of three Indian guards. No grafters were allowed to see bitrary allotments to these Indians. The selections have been made for the most to take the Indians to their lands. When they are settled the government will furnish to each allottee tools to the value

The sustenance of the allottees will be looked after by the government and paid out of the appropriation of $20,000 until such time as the Indians shall become self-supporting.
